

Power Paths

Credits

Director/Producer/Videographer
Bo Boudart

Producer
Norman Brown

Producer/Writer/Videographer
Christopher Phillip

Senior Project Consultant
Dan M. Kammen

Project Advisor
Winona LaDuke

Editor
Rhonda Collins

Assistant Editor
Hayley Nenadal

Writer
Jessica Abbe

Narrator
Peter Coyote

Character Interviews

Eddie Spears

Lower Brule Sioux has participated in Intertribal COUP and Native Energy Corporation to push for renewable projects on the tribal reservations nationally. He participated in Power Paths as one of the on camera spokespersons and proponents for developing renewable energy on the reservations.

Klee Benally

Navajo a Navajo singer and member of the band, Black Fire, whose music is featured in Power Paths. He is a graphic designer and is a founder of Indigenous Action Media, a group providing indigenous youth with skills to address environmental and social justice issues.

Enei Begaye

Navajo mother and co-director of the Black Mesa Water Coalition who helps organize A grassroots coalition to bring renewable energy to reservation lands for sustainable economy.

Andy Bessler

Southwest Representative of the Sierra Club's Tribal Partnerships Program who creates an alliance with tribal grassroots groups to stop coal fired pollution and lobby for more renewable energy projects in the Southwest.

Nicole Horseherder

Navajo mother and director of the Navajo Grassroots organization To'Nizhoni (Beautiful Water Speaks) who advocates for protecting traditional Navajo values as well as land and water conservation.

Winona LaDuke

A political and environmental leader who calls attention to Native Americans and how their resources could contribute significantly to solving the national energy crisis with appropriate new legislation to increase renewable energy.

Preben Maegaard

Danish activist who has led his country to replace fossil fuel dependence with wind and solar energy since the 1980's.

Vernon Masayesva

Hopi activist who protested the burning of coal on Hopi tribal lands and to protect their precious aquifers from depletion by the coal companies.

Herman Scheer

Politician internationally known for his efforts to pass legislation in the German parliament, resulting in doubling the amount of renewable energy produced in Germany and guaranteeing feed-in energy tariffs for those who generate more electricity than they consume.

Leonard Selestewa

Hopi farmer who fights coal to preserve the Hopi way of life who was instrumental in leading the Just Transition Coalition to achieve that.